Traffic is big problem in many cities now. Many peoples get stuck in jam for hours everyday. It makes people late and feel angry. In this essay I will telling about three reasons why traffic happen: too many peoples, bad city design and no enough buses.

Too Much People Live in Cities

One cause is that cities has so much people. More peoples means more cars on the road. In some place like Cairo or Mexico, every person want drive their own car to go somewhere. This is make road too crowded. Also, people live far from city center because rent is high. So, they drive long time every morning and night. This is more traffic. If cities have less people, traffic will be gone maybe.

Check Content Feedback ✕

1. Content Relevance: Your essay addresses the prompt by discussing three causes of traffic congestion in big cities: overpopulation, poor urban planning, and insufficient public transportation. However, the introduction could be clearer in stating that you will explore these causes in detail.

2. Structure and Clarity: The essay lacks a clear thesis statement in the introduction. A strong thesis would outline the three causes you will discuss. Additionally, the conclusion should summarize the main points more effectively and reinforce the need for solutions.

3. Topic Sentences: Each paragraph should begin with a clear topic sentence that directly relates to the main idea of the paragraph. For example, "Overpopulation is a significant contributor to traffic congestion" would strengthen your first paragraph.

Check Organisation Feedback

1. Title and Introduction: The title "Causes About Traffic Congestion in Big Cities" should be revised for clarity; consider "Causes of Traffic Congestion in Big Cities." The introduction lacks a clear thesis statement. Instead of stating "I will telling about three reasons," clearly outline the three causes you will discuss.

2. Body Paragraphs: Each body paragraph should start with a clear topic sentence that directly relates to the thesis. For example, "One major cause of traffic congestion is overpopulation in urban areas." This will help guide the reader through your arguments.

3. Transitions: The transitions between ideas are weak. Use transitional phrases to connect sentences and paragraphs more effectively. For instance, instead of "Another reason is that," consider "In addition to overpopulation, poor urban planning also contributes to traffic congestion."

This is how Organization feedback works.

Teacher Feedback:

Grammar Analysis:
Your writing demonstrates a solid understanding of basic grammar, but there are several areas for improvement. For instance, "peoples" should be corrected to "people," and "this is make road too crowded" should be revised to "this makes the roads too crowded." Additionally, consider using more varied sentence structures to enhance the flow of your writing.

Vocabulary Analysis:
Your vocabulary is generally appropriate for the topic, but there are opportunities to enhance precision and variety. For example, instead of "big problem," you might use "significant issue" or "major challenge." Additionally, incorporating more academic terminology, such as "urban congestion" instead of "traffic," could elevate your writing.
